The Favorite Resort.

The Emporium Theatorium, so successfully conducted by W. G. Bair and Robt. Green continues to grow in favor with the public, who know the watchfulness of the proprietors will prevent the production of anything objectionable, thereby making the place perfectly safe for ladies or children. The management thoroughly renovated this popular resort for the winter attractions. They have eliminated the vaudeville attractions and increased the pictures, a change we believe more to the liking of their patrons. Miss Zetta Wells, daughter of Mrs. E. T. Wells, the pianist, renders a popular song nightly, which is always well received. The Theatorium has become so closely allied with our people that almost everybody is sure to attend nightly. The management are to be congratulated upon the efficient manner they handle the large number of patrons nightly. It is firmly rooted and here to stay.

Council Proceedings.

Regular meeting of Emporium Borough Council held Monday evening, Oct. 17, 1910.

Members present:—Messrs. Cramer, Haupt, Howard, Mullin, Pearsall and Mr. Norris, President.

Members absent:—Messrs. Cummidgs, Mumford and Spencer.

"Message From the Skies."—Americans for Americans.

Does the American public ever stop to consider what would happen if an invader should gain possession of our shores?

Now is the time our great country should take steps to prevent such a thing from happening. It is a known fact that some day Japan will attempt to dictate in regard to the affairs of this country. The author of "A Message From the Skies," which is to be placed in Dramatic form, has placed a timely warning before the American people by drawing a little on the imagination and showing what would happen if the Yellow race ever succeeded in landing on our shores. Of course the story is fiction, but never the less the fact remains, that it is not at all improbable.

This great play which will be presented at the Opera House, for one night, Oct. 20th, has created a sensation wherever it has been played. The company which numbers 14 people, is headed by Miss Ella Kramer, supported by such well known players as Theo. V. Rennie, Gertrude Huntingdon, Al. Massey and others. The company carries a fine band and all lovers of good music should avail themselves of the opportunity to hear such an organization. Popular prices will prevail for the performance while the band concerts will be absolutely free. Prices: 75c, 50c, 35c, and 25c.

Bell Telephone Absorbs Emporium Company.

Mr. J. H. Crosman, Jr., of Harrisburg, division manager of Bell Telephone Co., who have lately absorbed the Emporium Company, visited in Emporium on Monday and Tuesday, looking after the company's interest here. He informed the PRESS they hope to make the service up to the best. Many improvements will be made in the near future.

Stole to Marry—Now in Jail.

A Coudersport correspondent writes: "A heart-broken bride of two weeks sobs away the hours at her home in Austin, while her young husband, a prisoner in the county jail here, awaits the disposition of his case by the Court on charge of peculiar robbery. By his own confession the thefts stretched over a period of several months, and were for the purpose of affording his bride-to-be a good time, for with a portion of the money taken he bought household goods for their new home. This they occupied just one week, when the bauble broke and the young wife saw her boy husband led away a prisoner by Constable Baker, while she went back to her parents' home to prepare to have her marriage with the young man annulled.

For a year there had been no more devoted lover in Austin than was George Resser to Miss Mary A. Moyer. Reeser is good-looking, dressed nicely and appeared to have all the money necessary to live without working a great deal. He explained that he had just come into a snug sum of money through the death of an uncle.

Nothing was too good for his pretty sweetheart, one of the most popular girls in Austin, and the daughter of highly-respected people. She had carriage and automobile rides and attended all the picnics and festivals.

For a year or more young Resser had made his home with Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Clary, an aged couple of Austin, who found their livelihood in a truck patch, near their home, added to a small pensian which Mr. Clary receives, he being a veteran of the civil war. The Clarys were saving of their little fund, and though they had saved nearly $400, they would not trust it in a bank, but kept it in a box in a trunk. From there all but $20 was stolen, and Resser has confessed the ingratis crime.

Teachers' Institute.

On Monday Oct. 24, will convene the Forty-fourth Annual Cameron County Teachers' Institute.

Without a doubt this Institute will be the best ever held in the county for no expense or pains have been spared to make it so.

Every session will be teeming with vital interest, not alone for the teachers, but for every one that may be present.

Of the instructors, Prof. Francis Green, of West Chester, needs no introduction as he has been with us several previous years, and his return is stronger proof of his efficiency and power as an instructor.

The return of Dr. J. George Becht of Clarion will be most heartily appreciated by those who know his worth as an instructor. Dr. Becht's success as an educator not only in the East but in the West as well, stamps him as being one of the strongest men in his line to-day.

Prof. Chas. A. Dodson of Kutztown, is again to have charge of the music, a fact that means, as in former years, a decided success in that department.

The new instructors, Dr. Ossian Lang, of New York and Prof. Willis Y. Welsh, of Clarion, come very highly recommended Dr. Lang is pronounced by all who know him as being a speaker not only capable of plain, thorough detail but one of exceptional ability as well

Prof. Welsh, head of the department of science at Clarion, is known as a potent speaker and one whose talks are vital in every part.

The presence of each and every one at the day sessions is especially urged for the time spent in attendance will be profitable as well as pleasurable.

Directors' Association will be held Thursday the 27th. The forenoon session will be held in the Grand Jury room. The afternoon session with the Institute.

The evening entertainments are exceptionally good this year. They consist of Lecture, "The Nature and Worth of Humor," by Prof. Green on Monday night. The Lotus Glee Club on Tuesday night, the Neil Litchfield Trio on Wednesday evening and end with The Vassar Girls on Thursday night.

Any one of these entertainments is well worth the price of the whole four. Tickets for these may be reserved at Harry Lloyd's at 8:00 Monday morning Train No. 54 will stop at Cameron. Sterling and Sinnamahoning all four evenings for the accomodation of those wishing to attend the entertainments.

The attendance of all cannot be too strongly urged for it is an event that none can afford to miss.

Chicken Dinner.

There will be served a Chicken Dinner at the residence of Mrs. J. D. Swope, Wednesday, Oct. 26th. Benefit of M. E. Church. Dinner, 25c.

TENER'S DENIAL IS CHEERED ALL ALONG THE LINE.

"Never Swindled Anyone in My Life," He Tells. The People Believe Him.

HIS WORD ACCEPTED

"I want to say, to the people that I never swindled anybody in my life. There is not a man, women or child in these United States who dares say that I ever sold them a share of get-rich-quick company stock."

John K. Tener, the Republican candidate for governor, made the statement quoted above. It was received with laud applause. The manner of his saying it carried the conviction that he was uttering the truth. The quotation is from the preface to his reading of the statement in which he emphatically denies the charges made against his business record. He has employed able lawyers in Pittsburgh and Philadelphia to look after his interests. His traducers are to hear more from him. Before reading the statement Mr Tener said:

TARGET FOR VILLIFICATION.

"I want to make a special statement. It seems that every candidate as soon as he is nominated becomes a target for criticism and vilification.

"I am said to be unfit for the office, and should not have political preferment because I happen to have been a baseball player. I am glad and proud of the fact that I did play baseball and I want to say that I would rather have been a baseball player and have that my only claim to fame than to go about in sheep's clothing speaking ill of my fellow men I want to ask the young men and the fathers of those young men if they for a monent think any good, honest, outdoor sport should bar them from any advancement in life.

"I am also accused of belonging to a certain fraternal organization. I am pround that I am a member of that organization, and I doubt whether there is one man in this audience who does not belong to some good, charittable and benevolent fraternity. I want to acknowledge my membership in that organization and to say that I am prouder of it than I ever was before.

STRENUOUS DENIAL OF CHARGES.

"You have also read recently of the charge which connects me with an alleged swindling concern. I want to say to you that I never swindled anybody in my life. There is not a man, woman or child in the United States who dares say that I ever sold them a a share of a get-rich-quick company stock. I want to make answer to the charge and I want to make it emphatic, and in order that I make no mistake I am going to read the statement which I dictated yesterday."

After reading the statement, Mr. Tener concluded:

"I was regurlarly nominated by the accredited representatives of the people and I do not propose to withdraw from this ticket for any man or any set of men."

Relief Fund.

According to the August report of the Pennsylvania Railroad System's Relief Funds, payments amounting to $189,984.14 were made last month, while the total sum which has been paid out through this plan of relief since it was established is $20,009,221.38.

The Employes' Relief Fund of the Pennsylvania Lines East of Pittsburg and Erie was established in 1866, and since that time $21,136,306.58 have been paid in benefits. Of this, $12,545,542.32 have been paid to members who were unable to work. The remainder, $8,490,764 26 went to the families of members who died. In August this year the payments on the Lines East to members incapacitated for work amounted to $88,173.65, while there were paid in death benefits $45,074.39.

The August payment by the Relief Fund of the Lines West of Pittsburg amounted to $55,826.10, of which $35,486 10 was in benefits to those unable to work. To the members of families of members who died there was paid the sum of $20,350.00. The total payments on the Pennsylvania Lines West since the Relief Fund was established in 1879 amount to $7,672,914.80, of which $4,702,797.00 were paid to incapicated members, and $3,170,117.80 were paid in death benefits.

"A message from the Skies," at opera house tonight have the best band that has appeared in years. The company must be good, in fact is. Go and see them.

A Serious Accident.

Saturday evening, about nine o'clock, while walking on the tracks, on his way home, to Sterling Run from Cameron, where he had been visiting some friends during the evening, Mr. Jessie Parker was struck by a train just a few rods east of the Ritchey bridge, about one and one-half miles east of Cameron, which resulted in the loss of his right arm, just a few inches below the shoulder, his right ear nearly torn off, several severe scalp wounds and a very deep gash on his chin. He was found in an unconscious condition about twelve-thirty Sunday morning by a man who was walking the track on his way to Emporium.

Section Foreman John May was promptly notified as soon as possible, and the injured man was taken to his home, when Doctors Bush and Smith, of Emporium, were called and gave him the necessary medical aid. After a consultation it was decided to take the injured man to the Ridgway Hospital, which was done on the Erie mail west, due at five o'clock.

He is reported getting along as well as can be expected, as he is very weak, having nearly bled to death before he was found, but it is understood he will live.

Very Pleasant Occasion.

A number of visitors attended Driftwood Masonic Lodge last Friday evening and were well paid for their time. The Driftwood boys are always strictly up-to-date in all their doings. Immediately after the business had been transacted light refreshments were served, (under the direction of Tyler George Towers) by the following pleasant young ladies: Misses Flora and Laura McDonald, daughters of Hon. John McDonald, Martha Osborn, Marion Towers and Jennie Gleason, daughter of Mr. L. W. Gleason. The pretty young ladies, clad in lamb skin aprons, quietly entered the room and served the small eaters in a very creditable manner. It is a rule of Driftwood Lodge to allow only daughters of Master Masons this privelege. It was certainly unique and a beautiful sight.

Eastern Star.

A lodge of Eastern Star will be instituted in Emporium to-morrow afternoon and evening, at Masonic Hall. This new lodge is composed of Master Masons, their wives, daughters and sisters. A very large number will be entered. Twenty-five or thirty Stars from DuBois and other places will be present. The ladies will serve a Banquet during the evening. Mrs. M. A. Rockwell has been silently but diligently at work for some time perfecting the plans. We are glad to note this new departure in Cameron county and believe it will meet with approbation.

Social Club.

There is a paper being circulated among the young men of Emporium to organize a club that will be known as the Emporium Social Club. The object of this club is to put on dances every two weeks, to be strictly private. A club of this kind has been greatly needed in Emporium and several names have already been added to the paper. A short business meeting will be held at the store of the Emporium Drug Company on Friday evening, at nine o'clock, for the election of officers and such other business that may be presented. It is hoped that the club will prove a success.

Will Retire Dec. 1st.

Hon. John McDonald, of Driftwood, Supervisor of the middle division of P. E. R. R., transacted business in town on Saturday, accompanied by his assistant, Mr. Russell. As stated in the PRESS, Judge McDonald will retire from the service Dec. 1st and take solid comfort, after constant duty with the Pennsy for over forty years. This genial gentleman is popular with our citizens and his friends are pleased to know himself and family will continue to reside in our county, having purchased a property at Driftwood.

Delightfully Entertained.

Miss Helen Richardson, of Driftwood, very delightfully entertained a number of her friends at a week-end house party, at her home on Third street the past week.

Miss Richardson proved herself a charming hostess and her guests enjoyed a continuous program of merry-making. A dance in the Opera House Friday night, and a pic-nic Saturday were features of entertainment. The party consisted of Miss Maud Canfield, Tionesta; Pearl Zell, Brockwayville; Mrs. C. D. Porter, Philadelphia; Mr. Kirk, Penfield; Mr. Kaufman, Lock Haven; C. H. Cordie, Sinnamahoning; Edna Mitchell, Margaret Denny and C. P. L. Russell, of Driftwood.

Republican Spell-Binders Spend Short Time Here.

HON. JOHN K. TENER,
Republican Candidate for Governor.

Our Next Governor and Party Mingle With our People.

While passing through, from Bradford, where a large Republican meeting was held Tuesday evening, en route for Potter and other northern counties.

John K. Tener, nominee for Governor.

Hon. John M. Reynolds, nominee for Lieut. Governor.

Congressional candidate Chas. E. Patton, of Clearfield.

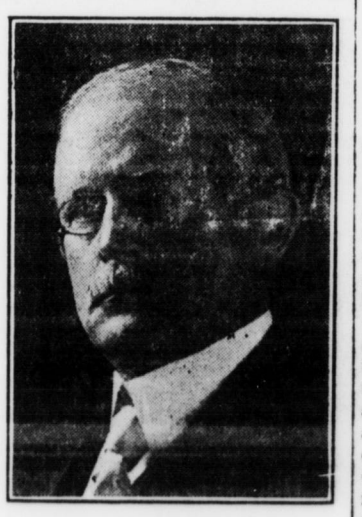
Gen'l Thos. J. Stewart, Adj. General of Pennsylvania.

Hon. W. I. Schaffer, Delaware.

Hon. Gabriel H. Moyer, Lebanon.

Also several newspaper reporters, passed a pleasant three hours in Emporium.

The spell-binders took a run down to Emporium for the afternoon and were met at the Junction with automobiles and conveyed to The Warner where a large number of citizens greeted candidates. After dinner a reception was held at the Republican Club, where a large number of voters called to pay their respects and guarantee the standard bearers their loyal support. It was noticeable that many Democrats were cordial in their congratulations and best wishes. Mr. Tener and his colleagues made a very favorable impression upon our citizens. While many regretted that speaking had not been arranged for, all realized that the speakers needed rest for the arduous work before them from now until Nov. 8th, when Cameron county will roll up one of its old time Republican majorities to assist in electing the entire ticket by 150,000 majority. The hopeless division in the ranks of Democracy spells defeat with a big D. Onward! Victory!



HON. JOHN M. REYNOLDS,
Republican Candidate for Lieutenant Governor.

Again At Home.

Lee L. Welsh, who spent the past three weeks at Olean, N. Y., where he has been receiving treatments, returned to his home at this place Friday evening. Mr. Welsh has had quite a serious time and is now slowly gaining in health. He made the PRESS office a social call on Wednesday morning. It is hoped that Lee will soon be fully recovered.

Is one of the most important topics discussed at the present time by county institutes and the family, and to the average salaried man or workman is somewhat serious, especially where the amily is large.

Should Give No Heed.

If the business men and working men of this favored land would keep in mind, when they hear or read attacks on Protection, the inevitable consequences to trade and wages of a victory for either Free-Trade or a "Tariff for revenue only," they would give no heed either to the doctrinaires or the demagogues who are trying to lead them into the swamp of commercial and industrial depression.—Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

Changed Location.

Mr. A. DeArmit, formerly a resident of this county but lately in the hotel business at Covington, Va., has moved to Hemlock, Md., and purchased the Glen Oak Hotel. The Crawford, Md., Record, in its Hemlock items we note:

"Mr. A. DeArmit, the new proprietor of the Glen Oak Hotel, has taken charge and everything gives promise that he will conduct a first-class hotel. The Glen Oak Hotel has been very much improved during the past week, by the installation of electric lights in the office and the dining room. The whole house is now lighted by electricity."

Mr. DeArmit is a hustler, and will no doubt give the residents of Hemlock first-class satisfaction.

Gettysburg to Have Great Celebration.

One of the greatest patriotic demonstrations ever held in the United States will take place in 1913 on the battlefield of Gettysburg, if the plans discussed at a preliminary meeting of the arrangements are carried out. The demonstration will be in observance of the fiftieth anniversary of the great battle between the Union army under Gen. Meade and the Confederate forces under Gen. Lee. That the celebration of the semi-centennial will be truly national in its scope is already assured by the acceptance by nearly all the States of the invitation to participate. Two of the Southern States, Georgia and North Carolina, were the first to respond to the invitation. It is expected that the Grand Army of the Republic and the United Confederate Veterans will have the leading parts in arranging for the celebration and that virtually all the other patriotic organizations of the country will participate.

Autoed to Emporium.

On Wednesday, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Walker, accompanied by Messrs. Will Erhardt and G. W. Sterner, of Austin, autoed to Emporium in Mr. Walker's new car and spent a few hours in town—the three former visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Hackenberg and the latter at the home of his mother, Mrs. Susan E. Sterner, who sustained severe injuries by falling last week.

PARTY NOT SINCERE

TRUTH ABOUT DEMOCRATIC ATTITUDE ON THE TARIFF.

At Heart, Protection Is Demanded Wherever Its "Special Interests" Are Concerned—Some Facts the Voters Should Know.

Representative Slemp of Virginia, who is making an active campaign for re-election, is telling the people of his district some things about the Democratic party's real attitude toward the tariff which should have wider circulation, through the press, for illumination of minds that may have become befogged by the continuous misrepresentation that has been carried on by Democratic opponents of the protective system.

For general publication, for appeal to the unthinking and the ignorant, the Democratic party is for tariff reduction or free trade, and makes the false plea that by such means it would bring about a lower cost of living. At heart it is for protection wherever its "special interests" demand it, and out of the sight of the public its representatives work to secure protection for such interests.

In a speech in which he fully and instructively discussed the tariff, Mr. Slemp told his hearers that he had learned what the Democratic policy of "tariff for revenue only" really means. It may be defined, he said, as—

Protection for what you have to sell, and

Free trade for what you have to buy.

Mr. Slemp told of his surprise when he saw some of his Democratic colleagues, committed by their party declarations to tariff reduction, asking for tariff increases for particular interests. "I thought," he said, "judging from their platform declarations for the past 50 years, that they looked upon protection as 'robbery,' and would not dare participate in any benefits to be derived from it. On the contrary I found—

"Forty Democratic members of Congress from the South violating their party pledge and asking for protection on lumber.

"Senator Tillman asking for a tariff of ten cents a pound on tea.

"Mr. Maynard and Mr. Lassiter, from Virginia, asking for 400 per cent increase on peanuts.

"All the Florida representatives in Congress asking for an increased duty on pineapples, citrons and long staple cotton.

"The Democratic delegation from Texas saying: 'You may take the tariff off everything but hides.'

"Representative Saunders of Virginia, asking for an increased duty on certain grades of tobacco.

"Both Senators from Virginia asking for an increased duty on extract of quebacho wood.

"Every Louisiana Congressman clamoring for a tariff on sugar and opposing reduction."

It is known to all who keep themtional importance that the Democratic party is not sincere in the attitude which it is maintaining, for partisan effect, toward the Republican policy of protection; but there are many who do not keep themselves informed, and such exposition as that made by Representative Slemp should be frequent, for their instruction.

The Republican party holds to the contention that all American indusselves informed about matters of natries, and indirectly the labor which they employ, should have the benefit of such protection of tariff as is proper and reasonable.

The Democratic party shouts in public for tariff reduction, and then its representatives in the Congress, working in committee rooms and otherwise out of sight of the public, seek to secure protection as a special benefit for sectional interests.

"New Tariff Breaks Record," is the headline in many papers this week. Customs receipts during the last year amounted to $327,900,000, which was more than $17,000,000 in excess of the previous year under the Dingley act.

As Usual.

As usual the Democrats will talk tariff—as usual, they will tell the people in their speeches and literature that protection is robbing the people, but they will not be able to convince the farmer or the laboring man that he should change the prosperity of today for the adversity of 1893-96. The people realize just what a Democratic house of representatives would mean. They realize that even though no destructive legislation could get through the next congress, nevertheless there would be anxiety in all financial and business circles, and such anxiety would bring curtailment of production and affect both employment and wages.—Marion (Va.) News.

Time to Pause and Reflect.

Every Republican should consider that the Democratic party cannot win this year through any merits of its own—performed or professed. Democratic victory if it comes, will come not because of Democratic strength but because of Republican division and consequent weakness. Is it worth while to learn over again the costly lessons of the past for the sake of a grudge or a disagreement that even though honest and sincere may well be laid aside and taken up after election?

ISSUE IS CLEARLY DEFINED

Protection to American Workers or the Competition of the World's Cheap Labor.

Congressman Champ Clark, the Democratic leader in the House of Representatives, said in 1897 (and he has never repudiated the utterance):

"I am a free trader, and proudly take my stand with Sir Robert Peel, Richard Cobden, John Bright and Henry George. * * * If I had my way today, sir, I would tear them (customhouses) all down, from turret to foundation stone."

Congressman Underwood, of Alabama, who hopes for Democratic victory that will make him chairman of the great committee on ways and means and give him the opportunity to shape a new tariff policy for the country, says:

"I believe in a tariff for revenue."

Congressman Henry of Texas, another prominent Democrat, said in a speech in the House at the last session:

"The protective tariff in every form should be odious to all true Democrats. * * * Democracy proclaims to the country, 'Batter down the tariff walls and invite the competition of the world.' * * * The fight will go on until we return to the revenue system advocated by Democracy."

These expressions of Democratic opinion could be mutliplied indefinitely. Here and there can be found Democratic advocacy of protection to some local industry but it is always coupled with the demand for free trade for the other fellows. On the other hand Republicans are a unit in supporting the principle of protection. Only by the success of the Republican party can that principle be maintained. Protection to American labor is Republican policy now as it always has been. Workingmen will hardly subscribe to the Democratic tenet of tearing down the custom houses from turret to foundation stone, inviting the competition of the world's cheap labor and returning to the revenue system advocated by Democracy, and farmers will not take kindly to the Democratic promise, thus to injure the market for everything which the farmer has to sell.

The President and Congress.

Speaking at the New York State Fair on September 17th, former President Roosevelt said:

"The president of the United States, Mr. Taft, has served his country honorably and uprightly in many positions—as judge, as governor of the Philippines, as secretary of war, and now as president—for to him and the congress acting with him we owe the creation of a tariff commission, the adoption of maximum and minimum tariff law treaties with foreign powers, the proper treatment of the Philippines under the tariff, the increase in the efficiency of the interstate commerce law, the beginning of a national legislative program providing for the exercise of the taxing power in connection with corporations doing an interstate business, a postal savings bank bill, the constitution of a commission to report a remedy for overcapitalization in connection with the issue of stocks and bonds."

It's a good record worthy of the commendation. No congressional record surpasses it for accomplishment of useful and progressive results. There is one way and only one way to make certain the continuance of legislation for the public good and that is to return a Republican majority to the next house of representatives.

Party Will Unite for Principle.

Republicans have been doing some lively scrapping among themselves and no mistake, but now that nominations are made and the question is the supremacy of Republican principles as against Democratic victory which would be the certain result of Republican division, there will be just as lively getting together, and the party will present a solid front to the enemy on election day. The Democratic hope of success is based only on Republican dissension. The free trade party declares no policy except its opposition to the Republican policy of protection, promises nothing except what amounts to a threat against the prosperity of the whole nation, and is boastful and hopeful only when it discerns signs of Republican disaffection.

Republicans Are Willing.

Of course, the Democrats have to blame it all on the tariff, and if they are intending to make this the issue in the next campaign they will find the Republicans perfectly ready and willing to meet them on that line. For some years they have deemed it prudent to make their appeal to the people on other grounds. If they now propose to combat the protective principle and to resume advocating a tariff for revenue only, all right.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

The Democratic campaign text book contains an invitation to the American people to return to the Democratic system of a tariff for revenue only—a system which, whenever tried, has brought stagnation of business, lower wages or none at all for our workingmen and consequent distress to all our people. It is well to remember what the issue is in this campaign. There are two sides—one the Republican and the other the Democratic.

Republican or Democratic—which? That's the question.

WHO'S WHO AND WHY

ONE OF THE "OLD GUARD"

One of the surprises of the recent primary election in Michigan was the defeat of Julius Caesar Burrows for renomination to the United States senate. Senator Burrows has been a long time in politics and was one of the "old guard," being associated with Aldrich, Hale and the Senator Allison in running the upper branch of congress. He entered congress in 1873 and has been a member of the senate since 1895.

Senator Burrows was born in Erie county, Pa., in 1837. He went west at an early age and road law while living in the western reserve of Ohio. In his early twenties he removed to Kalamazoo and has since been a resident of Michigan. He has practised little at the bar, having been in politics ever since he returned home from two years of service in the civil war, with the First Michigan regiment. It is recalled by the old inhabitants of Kalamazoo that Mr. Burrows made a successful prosecuting attorney in the two years he held the office immediately after the war.

As his reputation as a debater and speechmaker grew, Mr. Burrows gained political power, and at the close of his term as prosecuting attorney was appointed supervisor of internal revenue for Michigan and Wisconsin, but declined the office. In 1873 the opportunity came that he wanted in the form of his first nomination to congress.

In the house of representatives Mr. Burrows rose slowly. He was not a leader and he was not given membership in the most important committees until late in his career, but he early attained a reputation for being an excellent parliamentarian and good presiding officer.

As a senator Mr. Burrows has been conspicuous chiefly as an opponent to Reed Smoot, the Utah senator accused of Mormonism, and as an opponent to tariff changes that were said to be against the interest of the Michigan beet sugar growers. Senator Burrows was temporary chairman of the Republican National convention at Chicago and delivered the keynote speech of the campaign which followed and which placed President Taft in the White House. The defeat of Burrows by the insurgents is thus an event of national importance.

'BUTCHER' WRITES A BOOK

With an unpardonable lack of tact or a sinister sense of humor Gen. Valeriano Weyler has allowed the publisher to print the title of his sensational book "Mi Mando in Cuba" ("My Command in Cuba") in letters of gory scarlet on a paper cover of livid gray.

Whatever the motive may have been that prompted such a choice, that bloody "eye catcher" of a line fitly symbolizes the man and his work. Weyler has been on trial before public opinion for butchering his enemies instead of fighting them; and he flaunts in our faces the ugly stains that show where he wiped off his knife.

Captain general of the most fertile province of Spain (and a province which more than once manifested her intention to throw off the Bourbon yoke), he makes such a case against the country that buys his services as no citizen of the United States could have ever made to justify America's attitude in the Cuban mix-up.

Weyler was the best hated man in Cuba when the government of this nation finally recalled him. This book will cause him to be cursed the length and breadth of the peninsula.

I wrote it, he says, "to give all the facts about my conduct as general-in-chief, a conduct admired not only by army officers, high and low, who wrote me innumerable letters, but by privates, who, on their return to the peninsula, spoke of me with a enthusiastic fervor for which I can never thank them enough. Various reasons prevented me from doing years ago (when I could not have freed my mind from a certain bias) a work which I can now do in perfect peace of mind, thanks to the time that has passed, and which has soothed the irritation due to the injustice I suffered at the hands of some men.

"Furthermore, I did not wish to sadden Senor Sagasta by retelling the story of our colonial disasters; neither did I feel any pleasure in censuring the illustrious General Martinez Campos, my predecessor in Cuba, however uncharitably he acted toward me after his return to the capital."

A perusal of the book fails to prove that Weyler kept his promise to treat the subject with perfect moderation.

A POPULAR ENGLISH PRIEST

One of the best known priests in attendance at the Eucharistic congress at Montreal was Rev. Father Bernard Vaughan of London, England, whose denunciation of the smart set has deeply stirred the world's metropolis. Everybody in London loves and honors Father Vaughan, yet he is the pulpit scourge of the town. He preaches truths that terrify, yet an hour before he speaks the seats in the church are jammed and crowds line the walls.

He is as well known on the continent as in Great Britain, and although he has become ultra-famous because of his lecturing and speaking, still he finds time to devote many hours a day to misistrations among the poor.

At the Montreal conference Father Vaughan created a sensation by his denunciation of race suicidde. "We are living in a day," he said, "of headlines, snapshots, taxicabs and music halls; in a day when the scramble for the prizes of life has become a mad passion. It is a day of fever, fret and fume. Competition for earthen toys is so keen and the margin of profit in commerce has become so fine that the one cry beating through the air is 'hurry up.' We are living in a day when the high ideals of old are fast yielding to the pressure of creature comforts, when principle is being exchanged for expediency; in a day when the Christian sense of sin is being regarded as a bygone superstition; in a day when it matters not what you believe, but only what you do, and when you may do what you like, provided you are not found out; in a day when the relations between the sexes take one back to pagan times; in a day when there is no empty place but in a cradle, not room in which to move but in the churches."

Father Vaughan is a brother of the late Cardinal Vaughan of England, and is sixty-three years old.

DEVOTES LIFE TO THE POOR

The Grand Duchess Elizabeth, widow of the Grand Duke Sergius of Russia, is regarded as an angel of mercy by the poor of Moscow, among whom she labors unceasingly. The grand duchess is a German princess by birth, a sister of the reigning grand duke of Hesse and also of the Czarina. Her husband was assassinated upon the streets of Moscow on February 17, 1905, being shattered by a bomb thrown at him. He was killed within a stone's throw of the palace and his wife, hearing the report, rushed to the spot and fell fainting upon Sergius' mutilated corpse.

After that terrible experience the grand duchess withdrew from all the gayeties of life and set to work to ameliorate the sufferings of the poor in her adopted country. She has founded hospitals and nursing homes. She herself directs operations and devotes eight to ten hours a day to the laborious work of superintending the different branches of her charitable activity. She devotes virtually the whole of her vast income, amounting to about $625,000, to the cause of charity, and the suffering of the poor in and around Moscow and in the vicinity of several of her estates in other parts of Russia have learned to regard her as a living saint. Not content with directing operations, she also participates in the active work of her various institutions.

Coiffures

COIFFURES which show the turban and Greek styles combined, are the most popular. Hat brims grow wider and the pretty turban coiffure fails to supply the requisite amount of hair to fill in the wide flaring brims. The turban coiffure with the addition of puffs or curls in a little chignon at the back solves the problem of a graceful balance between hat and coiffure.

The little fringe of wavy hair or loose curls about the face, barbed by a full braid wrapped about the head, make up the quaint style which is ideal for the possessor of a pretty face or well shaped head. It is, in fact, almost always becoming. It is only when one aspires to picture hats or long turbans that it falls short. Sometimes the addition of a cluster of curls is all that is needed.

A new coiffure which is of recent design shows the hair parted in the middle, rolled back at the sides into a full, soft roll and the ends laid in a coil at the crown of the head. This coiffure is finished with five short curls pinned in at the top of the coil and falling to the sides and toward the front where they are pinned with invisible pins to place.

Girls make for themselves many pretty hair ornaments of velvet and spangles or rhinestones. Little June roses made of ribbon and finished with millinery rose foliage is among the smartest and most fascinating of these decorations. The fashion of wearing a velvet band across the top of the head finished with a little rosette at each side which was in vogue a half century ago is with us again. The modern girl wears her rosette less primly set and wherever she finds them, in her opinion, most becoming.

WAIST TO MATCH THE SKIRT

Pretty Yet Simple Style That Has Some Touches of Novelty to Recommend It.

This is a pretty, simple style, suitable to be made in the same material as the skirt; if washing material is used the pointed straps in front may be of broderie Anglaise; for silk, crepe de Chine or thin woolens, lace insertion would be used. The Claudine collar and cuffs are of plaited muslin edged with lace; the fulness at waist is gathered into a band to which also the skirt might be attached.

Materials required: 1¼ yard 42 inches wide, 1¼ yard trimming.

Black and White Eton.

Among the new eton suits sent out by the Paris dressmakers may be noted cream-colored moire suits with square black sailor collars of mousseline de soie, and also black satin suits with white cloth sailor collars, finished with a double row of gilt buttons down the front of the short jacket.

In black and white fabric combinations white silk with a black velvet stripe has been seen.

Powder Puff Hatpin.

The powder puff with which miladi "takes off the shine" has been hidden in many places, but the latest is to have it in the hat pin. The head of the pin opens like a locket and within is the tiniest of powder puffs. The inside of the head that closes over this has a tiny mirror. The outside is the jeweled or painted head of the pin, that in all respects is like many other pins, with no suggestion of the secret beautifier.

SIMPLE "GOOD MANNER" RULE

"Do as You Would Be Done By" Is the Root of All Forms of Etiquette.

If you are puzzled about a question of etiquette and have not time to consult an older or more experienced friend or relative apply the golden rule—to do as you would be done by—for this will almost always bring you out of your difficulty with flying colors. The expression "a nature's gentleman" is often applied to some simple-minded and unsophisticated man who is thus guided; for, whether one be gentle or simple, the truest "good breeding" is shown by care for the feelings of others. The real "great lady" is as thoughtful and considerate for those beneath her in social position as she would be for royalty, though she would show her thought in a different fashion, and since all may be "queens by love," it behooves every one to be royally courteous and considerate. The brusque, rough woman who confounds a pleasant manner of speaking with insincerity is greatly to be pitied, for she has thrown away her scepter and lost her crown.

The Dainty Neckbow.

Its selection has a great deal to do with the effect of the get-up as a whole.

Never has it been seen in greater and more charming variety.

Narrow, flat bows of point d'esprit, either black or white, are now "the thing."

Most of the bows, of various materials are flat.

There is an apparent liking among well dressed women for the plaited silk bow, edged with Persian.

For morning, there are airy little frills and jabots of black net and point d'esprit.

Among the fancy tid bits are little clusters of silk roses, with plain corded silk for stems.

The Irish and cluny bows are as popular as ever, particularly when these laces are used as edging or trimming on bits of fine muslin.

Ornamental Sailor Collars.

No one seems to think a liberty is taken with the sailor collar when that usually substantial adjunct of dress is rendered in the most frivolous materials. Hence we see it fashioned in gauze, with tassels to weight it at the corners and even in gold and silver lace upon the most vaporous of evening wraps as well as on the daytime toilette.

The tailors are naturally making use of the design, and are applying it to their serge coats and even to suits they are making. Smart, too, is a coat of purple moire with a sailor collar held down at the corners beneath rosettes of purple lace, each one centered by a moire-covered button. The dress worn with the coat was made of the same materials and had a couple of deep flounces of purple lace above the hem of the skirt.

The Kitchen Cabinet

FOLKS sometimes fails to note the possibilities that lie
In the way yer mouth is curving, an' the twinkle in yer eye;
It ain't so much whut's said that hurts ez what ye think lies hid,
It ain't so much the doin' ez the way a thing is did;
An' many a home's kep' happy an' contented day by day,
An' like as not a kingdom hez been rescued from decay,
By jes' laughing.

Gather Up the Fragments.

The best historical example of economy is given us in the miracle of the loaves and fishes. "There were gathered up of the fragments twelve baskets full." We learn here the dignity of economy.

Far too often the food that would preserve life is made to feed the kitchen fire. Bits of butter left on the butter plates is often mussy looking, but perfectly good to use in cooking. A tablespoonful of cream or half a cupful of milk may be put into the mashed potato rather than the garbage pail.

All cold mashed potatoes should be saved for croquettes or puffs. One cupful will make six croquettes or a good-sized puff.

Much of the wastefulness in the kitchen is from want of knowledge. Rice water, for example, may not be known as nourishing. If the water in which rise is cooked is allowed to cool it makes a jelly, digestible and strengthening. Such water is an addition to any soup stock and should never be thrown away.

Bits of fat may be tried out and used in many ways in the cooking. Even mutton and lamb fat may be saved for healing chapped hands and making soap.

When one remembers the countless uses for bread crumbs, one marvels that they are ever discarded as worthless.

Another point in providing for a family is the wastefulness of large amounts. It is not a proof of liberality to have large quantities of left over food; it is rather a lack of management. Have just enough.

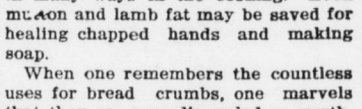
Water in which vegetables have been boiled, except potato and asparagus water, should be saved for the basis of soups.

A cupful of cold boiled rice may be added to breakfast muffins or waffles, making them lighter, more easily digested and more palatable.

The half cup of peas left from today's dinner may be used in an escalloped dish for tomorrow's luncheon or supper.

When using a little onion for seasoning, leave the peeling on and turn the cut side down on a plate; it will keep fresh for a week with this treatment.

Economy and forethought stand as the first of domestic duties.



DELIBERATE long before thou consecrate a friend; and when thy impartial judgment concludes him worthy of thy bosom, receive him joyfully and entertain him wisely; impart thy secrets boldly and mingle thy thoughts with his; he is thyself; and use him so; if thou firmly believe him faithful, thou makest him so.

—F. Quarles.

Culinary Suggestions.

When casting about for something for a change try grilling a piece of lamb. Score the top, brush it over with beaten yolk of egg, dredge it with salt and pepper, cover with a layer of bread crumbs and bake, basting with butter and water every 15 minutes. When it is cooked, garnish with currant jelly and serve with caper sauce.

Salmon croquettes are especially good made in this manner: Mix a large can of salmon with three good sized boiled potatoes that have been mashed, add bread crumbs, a beaten egg, vinegar or lemon juice to moisten, and season with pepper and salt. Shape into croquettes, roll in egg and crumbs and fry in deep hot fat.

Minced lamb, which may be prepared from the above grilled lamb, is an appetizing way of serving a left-over. Remove all the good meat from the roast and mince fine. Put the bones and skin in a saucepan and cover with a pint of water. Add a few sprays of parsley, half a carrot cut in pieces, one onion, two mint leaves and simmer for half an hour, add any gravy left from the roast and strain. Thicken with a tablespoonful each of flour and butter, season with salt, cayenne, then add the lamb, heat to the boiling point and serve.

Remedies.

To remove a splinter from a child's finger, fill a large bottle with hot water and hold the injured finger in the steam. This will draw the flesh and aided by gentle pressure, the splinter will come out in a short time.

The pernicious habit of allowing a baby to have a pacifier or his thumb to suck cannot be too severely condemned. A child has both sets of teeth in the mouth at birth and any undue pressure on the gums as constant as this habit, is sure to throw them up and out making the ugly projecting teeth. This is not the worst result either of the habit, for mouth breathing and adenoids are often the outcome. It is necessary to have these adenoids removed by the knife.

reason will set level anywhere, this feature being of especial importance in the winter when the ground is frozen. A bunk made in accordance with this sketch requires less lumber than any other style, says Homestead. Make the bed proper of yellow pine 2x8 stock, using good straight 2x8 for the sides, letting them come flush with the outside of the bottom and make a mortise of the sides for the ends to fit in. For ordinary cattle, a bottom made of four 2x8 will usually be wide enough but for horned cattle or big steers, five pieces should be used, making it forty inches on the inside. To make the legs, cut them the length wanted out of good, rough 4x4, nail them lightly to the trough (afterwards bolt them), then put the pieces of 2x4 (one on each side of legs) up tight against the bottom of bunk, being careful to have the legs straight. Then put on the lower pair of 2x4 crosspieces about five inches from the ground. Next comes the bracing which is made of 2x4 and put in like the drawing. Put in the short braces first; that is the braces between the legs, then put a piece of 2x8, one foot long on top of the lower crosspieces for the long brace to rest on, taking care to have them tight.

FOR WOOL AND MUTTON

How to Develop Good Flock for Double Purpose—Blue Grass Makes Best Permanent Pasture.

(By F. G. HUGHES.)

To develop a good flock of breeding sheep for wool and mutton I would begin with the ewes that are half Cotswold and half Merino and mate them with a buck that is a full blooded Shropshire.

In the cross you get a grade of sheep that is hard to beat for both wool and mutton. By this method I once got a twin lamb that sheared, when a little more than a year old, 16 pounds of good wool and when a year and a half old the carcass weighed 160 pounds.

I cross my sheep back and forth as my judgment tells me is best. If the sheep are getting too wrinkly and the wool too short I get either a Cotswold, Oxford or Shropshire buck, and if the fleece is getting too hairy and light in weight I breed back to the Merinos.

In caring for the flock I prefer green pasture for them, as many months in the year as possible.

Blue grass makes the best permanent pasture. Dwarf essex rape can be sown as soon as the ground will work in the spring and if sown alone five or six pounds of seed will be required per acre.

Six or eight weeks after sowing it will be ready for pasture which will last until freezing time.

A smaller amount of rape can be sown with oats and after the crop is removed I have an excellent fall pasture. Sheep like rape, but I would not advise anyone to keep them on rape alone.

Pumpkins are good feed for them in the fall of the year. When winter comes on and the pastures do not furnish enough feed to keep them thrifty and growing nicely I begin feeding corn and fodder, cow peas and clover hay and sometimes threshed oats or sheep oats.

I believe ten sheep will eat as much as one cow and I aim to feed accordingly.

I prefer to have lambs come in February and although it may require care to save them during cold weather, when fall comes, I think I am ahead for they go through the winter better and make better sheep than do late lambs.

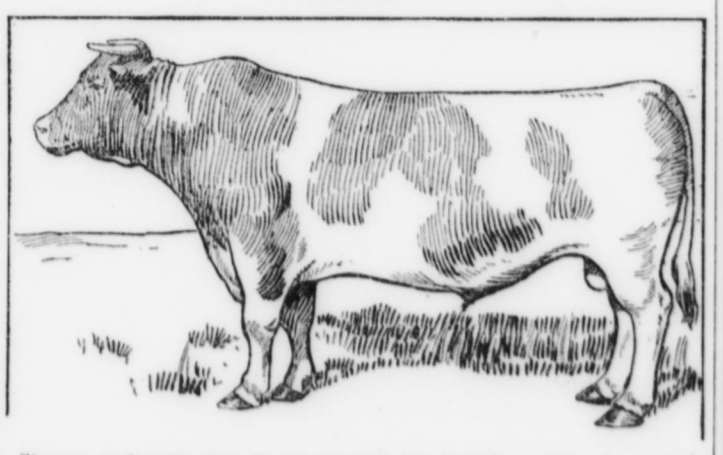
Corn Grain for Horses.

Corn grain when ground into meal is by far too concentrated to feed alone to horses. It lacks fiber and ash to insure good digestion. Therefore, when the cob can be finely ground it is an advantage for the reasons named. Certainly, ground corn is better for horses than whole corn as a saver of feed for them. The horse cannot masticate the corn fine enough so that the digestion gets all the nutrients out of it, and much of it will pass through the alimentary canal undigested, yet whole corn when fed alone is a safer feed than ground corn. The better way to feel corn is to grind it with oats, two parts oats to one of corn, or grind the corn and mix coarse wheat bran with it equally.

Scarcity of Timber.

Wood is becoming scarcer and dearer every year. As population increases we shall be obliged to use more acreage in its sustentation. The trees will be planted again on the watersheds, and dams will be built to hold surplus water for use in times of drought, as is done in older countries. Your rivers then will be more serviceable in summer and less dangerous in the spring time.

FINE SPECIMEN OF HOLSTEIN



Strange as it may seem to say so, there is no best breed of cows, chickens or anything else. It is true that some breeds are better than others, but when it comes to deciding among the few best ones, much must be left to individual preference and varying circumstances and conditions.

When it comes to making a selection, it pays best to choose the breed most prevalent in your vicinity, provided it is one of the best standard breeds. This will enable you to sell your products to better advantage and ship to better advantage. If your community is known far and wide as making a specialty of any certain breed, buyers will come after them and pay you a better price if they can get enough to ship in carlots. So, if you are a practical man, this will decide your choice rather than any fancied superiority of breeds.

The virtues of the different breeds balance up pretty well any way. While Jerseys give richer milk, Holsteins give more of it. One breed eats less and another makes more beef. It is well to study up all the points and then decide according to your own needs and best judgment.

The illustration shows a Holstein bull which won first prize at a recent Illinois state fair. He is a good specimen of the breed, large and vigorous, with the black and white well distributed. He is an excellent breeder, and is good enough to head most any herd

Widow Healy Indulges in Some Plain Speaking to Her Devoted but Timid Lover.

The courting of the Widow Healy by Terence Corcoran was a tedious affair to every one in Magraw place, most of all to the widow herself, who tried various expedients to assist her timid admirer.

"I'm thinking I might go for a sojer," Terence announced one night, when his fancy had been stirred by a newspaper account of a military pageant. "I'm not so old but I could do it. I was wanst in a school regiment."

"You go for a sojer!" cried the Widow Healy in mingled scorn and alarm. "A man that calls on a lone widow for two years and more, widout pluck enough to spake his mind, hasn't the makings of a dhrummer boy in him."

BABY'S SKIN TORTURE

"When our baby was seven weeks old he broke out with what we thought was heat, but which gradually grew worse. We called in a doctor. He said it was eczema and from that time we doctored six months with three of the best doctors in Atchison but he only got worse. His face, head and hands were a solid sore. There was no end to the suffering for him. We had to tie his little hands to keep him from scratching. He never knew what it was to sleep well from the time he took the disease until he was cured. He kept us awake all hours of the night and his health wasn't what you would call good. We tried everything but the right thing.

"Finally I got a set of the Cuticura Remedies and I am pleased to say we did not use all of them until he was cured. We have waited a year and a half to see if it would return but it never has and to-day his skin is clear and fair as it possibly could be. I hope Cuticura may save some one else's little ones suffering and also their pocket-books. John Leason, 1403 Atchison St., Atchison, Kan., Oct. 19, 1909."

Love's Crime.

George was a manly fellow, yet, surprising as it may seem, he was guilty of a grave charge, a criminal offense—theft, for had he not many times, stolen kisses from his fair sweetheart?

Maude, one of the most lovable of girls, was equally guilty as an accessory; she received the stolen property. Each seemed to have perfect confidence in the other, however, and when sentence was pronounced by a properly qualified official, they decided to serve their time together.

They remained loyal to the end, neither making any effort to have their sentence abrogated or shortened, but during the course of their long term together several small offenses were directly chargeable to them.—J. W. B. in Puck.

The Delineator for November.

With its November number the Delineator celebrates its fortieth anniversary. When the magazine issued its first number to illustrate the fashions, women wore hoopskirts and shawls, queer bonnets and quaint coiffures. Some of the early pictures are reproduced in the current issue of the magazine, which has developed marvelously along all lines until it now offers the best in literature, while it speaks authoratatively concerning all that pertains to the art of dressing well.

In this anniversary number, Mabel Potter Daggett recalls incidents "When the Delineator Was Young," beginning with the story of how Mrs. Butterick stopped sewing on her baby's dress, one evening long ago, to suggest to her husband that women would be glad to have patterns for their children's clothes. Charles Hanson Towne reviews the "Noted Contributors to the Delineator," among whom are many of lasting fame, and Honore Willsie describes "The Street The Delineator Lives On"—a street in which numerous historic characters once dwelt.

Erman S. Ridgway in his editorial department, "Conversazione," announces that in celebration of its fortieth anniversary the Delineator will make a thorough investigation of the legal status of dependent children in every State as a step toward improving conditions.

One of the leading articles of the month is "The Passion for 'As Good As,' by David Graham Phillips, a startling arraingment of extravagant women. Louis V. DeFoe writes of "The Actor's Other Self," and Anne Forsyth tells about her third "place" in her venture, "Seven Times a Servant."

The fiction includes "From Generation to Generation," by Kate Jordan, and "Lovers," by James Oppenheim.

Why Not Make it Unanimous?

A Democratic neighbor at our elbow asked us recently "Why cannot we make Hon. Josiah Howard's election unanimous" by giving him the solid vote of this county in return for the good will he has manifested for the upbuilding of our county, his liberality and almost daily labor in our behalf. He could sit down and attend to his large business affairs and make more money, but he elects to work, in many ways, for a greater county and for every cause that will help his neighbor.

The position he occupies to day in legislative affairs, by hard and incessant work, has fitted him for honors of a higher sphere and it is now up to Cameron county voters to help our county by voting solidly for Hon. Josiah Howard for Assembly, regardless of party, knowing that he will manfully represent every citizen of the county, regardless of party.

A Demagogue in Action.

The citizen who forms his opinion in politics deliberately and with regard to the facts has been hampered somewhat in the present campaign by abuse and misrepresentation from the third party candidate for Governor. The tempestuous Mr. Berry has endeavored to confound the voter with a view to forcing him to base his judgment not upon the issues nor upon the relative merits of the candidates, but upon sensational charges and other specious and deceitful arts employed by the office-hungry demagogue, says the Philadelphia Star.

Berry's campaign is an insult to every self-respecting Republican in this State. By skillfully made charges, insinuations, inuendoes and reckless falsification he hopes to deceive the people and secure an office. Instead of meeting the voters with honest discussion of the issues he appears as the apostle of abuse and invective. Throughout the campaign his methods have been those of a demoguge. After the most reckless statements he will shrewdly admit, "Now, I am not prepared to furnish evidence that would stand in any court of justice."

Repeatedly Mr. Berry has said: "John K. Tener was nominated at the dictation of the liquor interests."

This statement does not contain a syllable that is true. John K. Tener was nominated by a convention of delegates representing the great Republican hosts of this Commonwealth. These delegates did not act at the dictation of the liquor men nor of anybody else. They nominated Mr. Tener because they knew him to be able and honest and because they considered him the most available candidate for the office of Governor. He was nominated without a dissenting vote and the liquor interests had absolutely nothing to do with the convention's action.

The alleged protection of vice in Philadelphia is another favorite theme of the office-hungry candidate. His charges are vague. He mereley repeats the scandalous statements of others and smaller office-hungry candidates who have endeavored to do in Philadelphia what Mr. Berry is now attempting to do in the State. But, even if Mr. Berry's charges possessed an element of truth, the fact would remain that John K. Tener is not a candidate for the office of Mayor of Philadelphia, but a candidate for Governor of Pennsylvania.

Berry is following the same line of attack he utilized when a candidate for State Treasurer five years ago. In that campaign the people of Pennsylvania were stricken aghast at his charges of amazing corruption in city and State. From newspaper and stump the wild dissemination of scandal went out until a majority of the people elected Berry State Treasurer.

He received their votes under pledge to reveal and correct the abuses that he alleged existed. One by one the scandalous statements he had made on the stump were proven to be without foundation.

There will be an ice cream social at the West Creek School House, Saturday evening, Oct. 22nd, the proceeds being for the benefit of the school.

Died.

We clip the following from a Newark, N. J., paper: On Tuesday, October 4, 1910, Clara Grundman, beloved daughter of Frederick and Gussie Grundman, aged 12 years, 8 months and 14 days Funeral was held on Friday, October 7, at 3 p. m., from the residence of her parents, 528 Bergen street, Newark, N. J. Interment at Woodland Cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Grundman and family formerly resided in Emporium.

A Generous and Charitable Wish.

"I wish all might know of the benefit I received from your Foley's Kidney Remedy," says I. N Began, Farmer, Mo. His kidneys and bladder gave him so much pain, misery and annoyance, he could not work, nor sleep. He says Foley's Kidney Remedy completely cured him. For sale by Emporium Drug Co.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has become famous for its cures of coughs and colds, croup and influenza. Try it when in need. It contains no harmful substance and always gives prompt relief. Sold by all dealers.

The Farmers For Tener.

The most satisfactory political meetings Representative Tener is attending on his tour of the State are those at which his audiences are composed largely of farmers. Mr. Tener has delivered several addresses at county fairs and at other gatherings patronized by farmers and dairymen. These meetings have been notable for Republican enthusiasm. The Pennsylvania farmer understands perfectly the issues of the campaign, and, therefore, is entirely unresponsive to the blandishments of the demagogue. This year, as usual, an overwhelmning majority of the rural voters will support the Republican Party. That party in Pennsylvania and in the nation invariably has responded to the demand of the farmer for legislation that will advance his welfare.

This will be a big year for the farmer. He is assured of fine crops and good prices. The industrial supremacy of the Keystone State and its tremendous mining interests overshadow its agricultural importance. Many Pennsylvanians do not realize that this is one of the largest wheat growing States. This year, according to the estimates, the wheat crop of Pennsylvania will amount to thirty millions of bushels. This production will be exceeded only by the five great wheat-growing States of the North-west. In this State are 225,000 farms and many farmers do not raise wheat. Only two or three States exceed Pennsylvania in the value of its dairy products.

The duty of the Pennsylvania farmer this year is perfectly clear. He should talk for the Republican ticket until November 8th and then vote for it. In the revision of the tariff the farmers demanded protective duties on agricultural products and got them—from the Republican party. No other American producer was so well cared for in the revision of the tariff. Naturally, the farmers of Pennsylvania are grateful for what has been done for them by the Republican Party, and they are anxious to give expression to their appreciation. They can do this in an emphatic manner by joining the Republican hosts who will record an unprecedented majority for the Republican ticket.

Mr. Tener's candidacy has proven very popular among the Pennsylvania farmers. His home is in a rural county and he understands thoroughly the requirements of residents of rural districts. He is an earnest advocate of the general extension of the good roads system and other projects with which the farmer is directly concerned. In the majority for the Republican ticket every farmer in Pennsylvania should be included.

IT IS SERIOUS

Some Emporium People Fail to Realize the Seriousness of a Bad Back.

The constant aching of a bad back.
The weariness, the tired feeling,
The pains and aches of kidney ills
Are serious—it neglected.
Dangerous urinay troubles follow.
An Emporium citizen shows you how to avoid them.

Mrs. J. N. Pefferman, Fourth Street, Emporium, Pa., says: "My back was weak and lame and my kidneys were in bad shape. I had but little strength and was feeling poorly in every way when I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Taggart's Drug Store. They benefitted me greatly and in return I heartily recommend them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents, Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

To the Voters of Cameron County

I am a candidate for the Legislature and respectfully solicit your votes for me at the coming election, Tuesday, Nov. 8, 1910.

I have always stood for

Schools and Churches,
Play Grounds and Factories,
Farms and Homes.

I have lived here 23 years and you all know me and that I have used my best efforts for the permanent advancement of the interests of the whole county.

Our towns and county are growing and we are getting better schools, better churches and more factories. We are on the FRONT LINE in many things and I will try to do my share to keep us there, and to progress as fast as opportunity and means permit us. We firmly believe the county is only beginning to open up its coal operations and brick clays and that they hold a large and sure future for us all.

Trusting to merit your support and assuring you of my appreciation and best endeavor.

Yours very truly,

JOSIAH HOWARD,

Emporium, Pa., Oct. 17, 1910.

DEATH'S DOINGS.

METCALF.

The many friends of Mr. N. N. Metcalf, Supt. of the Goodyear Lumber Company, deeply sympathize with him in the death of his estimable wife. While on an automobile trip to New Hampshire Mrs. Metcalf was taken ill with pneumonia at Corning, and confined to her bed. The funeral was held at Austin last Friday, the remains being interred at Port Allegany, their former home. A large number of friends from this section attended the funeral.

MOORE.

Mrs. Signa Moore, wife of F. W. Moore, of 41, Neshannock avenue, died early Tuesday morning at the Shenango Valley hospital. Her death is a shock to her many friends, as she had been ill but three days. Pneumonia was the cause of death.

Mrs. Moore had resided in this city about a year, coming here from Montreal, Can. She was born in Sweden, Nov. 11, 1882, and was 27 years of age She is survived by her husband, and two children, Anna, aged 4 years, and Mary, aged 3 months; also by three sisters, Mrs. Anna Fletcher, of Toronto, Can.; Mrs. Walter Clark of Emporium, Pa., and Mrs. Aaron Miller, of Lowellville, O., and by one brother, Oscar Wallin of Sweden.

The funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon at the family residence, the hour to be announced later. Interment at Oak Park cemetery,—New Castle News.

Mrs. Moore had many friends in Emporium, who will be pained to hear of her death. The PRESS, as well as the friends of the family, deeply sympathize with them in their bereavement.

HENRY JEAGER, Emporium, Pa.

It is patent epough that there is a conspiracy and a complete organization among the Progressives and Insurgents to destroy the Republican party in the coming campaign. This rebellion is backed and encouraged by the Free-Trade newspapers of the State. The outcome of this rebellion will be recorded next November.—Vinton (Ia.) Eagle.

Greatly Improved.

Mr. Daniel McCormick, of the place, returned from Philadelphia on Tuesday where he has been an inmate of Medico-Chi. Hospital for some time. Dr. Fox, the celebrated physician, operated on his left eye and removed a cataract. He will have to return in a few months for a similar operation on his right eye. He is greatly encouraged over his improved condition.

Young Lad Shot.

On Wednesday afternoon, Harry Stumpf, aged 14, whose parents reside on Portage street, was accidently shot while handling a revolver. The lad no doubt was out hunting, he being near Sizerville when Frank Blumle, Jr., found him. An examination developed that the ball had entered the lad's abdomen. He was taken to Ridgway Hospital last evening. It is reported the wound is not fatal.

Social Dance.

A social dance will be held in the opera house next Wednesday evening, after the concert in honor of the teachers of Cameron County. These dances are given every year and are looked forward to with much pleasure. All in attendance last year were well pleased with the affair and this dance promises to exceed all other dances given during Institute week.

Returned From Buffalo.

Last Saturday, on the noon flyer, Mr. and Mrs. Hackenberg returned from Buffalo, where Mr. Hackenberg has been receiving treatment for the past three months. We are sorry to state that the visit to Buffalo did not prove satisfactory and beneficial to Mr. Hackenberg and at this writing his condition remains about the same. They were accompanied home by Mr. and Mrs. Bloom, of Buffalo and Mrs. Lora Erhardt and son Will, of Austin. Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Walker, (daughter) of Austin, were at the Hackenberg home on Wednesday—little hopes being entertained for his recovery. Mrs. H. H. Webber, another daughter, of Jersey Shore, arrived at the bedside of her father yesterday.

A Good Position.

Can be had by ambitious young men and ladies in the field of "Wireless" or Railway telegraphy. Since the 8-hour law became effective, and since the Wireless companies are establishing stations throughout the country there is a great shortage of telegraphers. Positions pay beginners from $70 to $90 per month, with good chance of advancement. The National Telegraph Institute operates six official Institutes in America, under supervision of R. R., and Wireless Officials and places all graduates into positions. It will pay you to write to them for full details at Cincinnati, O., or Philadelphia, Pa. 34-5t

SYNOPSIS.

Miss Innes, spinster and guardian of Gertrude and Halsey, established summer headquarters at Sunnyside. Amidst numerous difficulties the servants deserted. As Miss Innes locked up for the night she was startled by a dark figure on the veranda. Unseemly noises disturbed her during the night. In the morning Miss Innes found a strange link cuff-button in a hamper. Gertrude and Halsey arrived with Jack Bailey. The house was awakened by a revolver shot and Arnold Armstrong was found shot to death in the hall. Miss Innes found Halsey's revolver on the lawn. He and Jack Bailey had disappeared. The link cuff-button mysteriously disappeared. Detective Jamieson arrived. Gertrude revealed she was engaged to Jack Bailey, with whom she talked in the billiard room a few moments before the murder. Jamieson accused Miss Innes of holding back evidence. He imprisoned an intruder in an empty room. The prisoner escaped down a laundry chute. Gertrude was suspected. A negro found the other half of what proved to be Jack Bailey's cuff-button. Halsey reappears and says he and Bailey left in response to a telegram. Gertrude said she had given Bailey an unloaded revolver, fearing to give him a loaded weapon. Cashier Bailey of Paul Armstrong's bank, defunct, was arrested for embezzlement. Halsey said Armstrong wrecked his own bank and could clear Bailey. Paul Armstrong's death was announced. Halsey's fiancee, Louise Armstrong, was found at the lodge. The lodgekeeper said Louise and Arnold had a long talk the night of the murder. Louise was prostrated. Louise told Halsey, that while she still loved him she was to marry another, and that he would despise her when he learned the whole story. It developed that Dr. Walker and Louise were to be married. A prowler was heard in the house. Louise was found at the bottom of the circular staircase. Louise said she had heard a knock at the door and answered it. Something brushed past her on the stairway and she fainted. Bailey is suspected of Armstrong's murder.

CHAPTER XIX.—Continued.

"Why was Mr. Bailey not present at the inquest?"

The detective's expression was peculiar.

"Because his physician testified that he is ill, and unable to leave his bed."

"Ill!" I exclaimed. "Why, neither Halsey nor Gertrude has told me that."

"There are more things than that, Miss Innes, that are puzzling. Bailey gives the impression that he knew nothing of the crash at the bank until he read it in the paper Monday night, and that he went back and surrendered himself immediately. I do not believe it. Jonas, the watchman at the Traders' bank, tells a different story. He says that on the Thursday night before, about 8:30, Bailey went back to the bank. Jonas admitted him, and he says the cashier was in a state almost of collapse. Bailey worked until midnight, then he closed the vault and went away. The occurrence was so unusual that the watchman pondered over it all the rest of the night. What did Bailey do when he went back to the Knickerbocker apartments that night? He packed a suit-case ready for instant departure. But he held off too long; he waited for something. My personal opinion is that he waited to see Miss Gertrude before flying from the country. Then, when he had shot down Arnold Armstrong that night, he had to choose between two evils. He did the thing that would immediately turn public opinion in his favor, and surrendered himself, as an innocent man. The strongest thing against him is his preparation for flight, and his deciding to come back after the murder of Arnold Armstrong. He was shrewd enough to disarm suspicion as to the graver charge."

The evening dragged along slowly. Mrs. Watson came to my bedroom before I went to bed and asked if I had any arnica. She showed me a badly swollen hand, with reddish streaks running toward the elbow; she said it was the hand she had hurt the night of the murder a week before, and that she had not slept well since. It looked to me as if it might be serious, and I told her to let Dr. Stewart see it.

The next morning Mrs. Watson went up to town on the 11 train and was admitted to the Charity hospital. She was suffering from blood-poisoning. I fully meant to go up and see her there, but other things drove her entirely from my mind. I telephoned to the hospital that day, however, and ordered a private room for her, and whatever comforts she might be allowed.

Mrs. Armstrong arrived Monday evening with her husband's body, and the services were set for the next day. The house on Chestnut street, in town, had been opened, and Tuesday morning Louise left us to go home. She sent for me before she went, and I saw she had been crying.

"How can I thank you, Miss Innes?" she said. "You have taken me on faith, and—you have not asked me any questions. Some time, perhaps, I can tell you; and when that time comes, you will all despise me—Halsey, too."

I tried to tell her how glad I was to have had her, but there was something else she wanted to say. She said it finally, when she had bade a constrained good-by to Halsey and the car was waiting at the door.

"Miss Innes," she said in a low tone, "if they—if there is any attempt made to—to have you give up the house, do it, if you possibly can. I am afraid—to have you stay."

That was all. Gertrude went into town with her and saw her safely home. She reported a decided coolness in the greeting between Louise and her mother, and that Dr. Walker was there, apparently in charge of the arrangements for the funeral. Halsey disappeared shortly after Louise left and came home about nine that night, muddy and tired. As for Thomas, he went around dejected and sad, and I saw the detective watching him closely at dinner. Even now I wonder—what did Thomas know? What did he suspect?

At ten o'clock the household had settled down for the night. Liddy, who was taking Mrs. Watson's place, had finished examining the tea-towels and the corners of the shelves in the cooling room, and had gone to bed. Alex, the gardener, had gone heavily up the circular staircase to his room, and Mr. Jamieson was examining the locks of the windows. Halsey dropped into a chair in the living room and stared moodily ahead. Once he roused.

"What sort of a looking chap is that Walker, Gertrude?" he asked.

"Rather tall, very dark, smooth-shaven. Not bad looking," Gertrude said, putting down the book she had been pretending to read. Halsey kicked a taboret viciously.

"Lovely place this village must be in the winter," he said irrelevantly. "A girl would be buried alive here."

It was then some one rapped at the knocker on the heavy front door. Halsey got up leisurely and opened it, admitting Warner. He was out of breath from running, and he looked half abashed.

"I am sorry to disturb you," he said. "But I didn't know what else to do. It's about Thomas."

"What about Thomas?" I asked. Mr. Jamieson had come into the hall and we all stared at Warner.

"He's acting queer," Warner explained. "He's sitting down there on the edge of the porch, and he says he has seen a ghost. The old man looks bad, too; he can scarcely speak."

"He's as full of superstition as an egg is of meat," I said. "Halsey, bring some whisky and we will all go down."

No one moved to get the whisky, from which I judged there were three pocket flasks ready for emergency. Gertrude threw a shawl around my shoulders, and we all started down over the hill; I had made so many nocturnal excursions around the place that I knew my way perfectly. But Thomas was not on the veranda, nor was he inside the house. The men exchanged significant glances, and Warner got a lantern.

"He can't have gone far," he said. "He was trembling so that he couldn't stand when I left."

Jamieson and Halsey together made the round of the lodge, occasionally calling the old man by name. But there was no response. No Thomas came, bowing and showing his white teeth through the darkness. I began to be vaguely uneasy, for the first time. Gertrude, who was never nervous in the dark, went alone down the drive to the gate, and stood there, looking along the yellowish line of the road, while I waited on the tiny veranda.

Warner was puzzled. He came around to the edge of the veranda and stood looking at it as if it ought to know and explain.

"He might have stumbled into the house," he said, "but he could not have climbed the stairs. Anyhow, he's not inside or outside, that I can see." The other members of the party had come back now, and no one had found any trace of the old man. His pipe, still warm, rested on the edge of the rail, and inside on the table his old gray hat showed that its owner had not gone far.

He was not far, after all. From the table my eyes traveled around the room, and stopped at the door of a closet. I hardly know what impulse moved me, but I went in and turned the knob. It burst open with the impetus of a weight behind it, and something fell partly forward in a heap on the floor. It was Thomas—Thomas without a mark of injury on him, and dead.

CHAPTER XX.

Dr. Walker's Warning.

Warner was on his knees in a moment, fumbling at the old man's collar to loosen it, but Halsey caught his hand.

"Let him alone," he said. "You can't help him; he is dead."

We stood there, each avoiding the other's eyes; we spoke low and reverently in the presence of death, and we tacitly avoided any mention of the suspicion that was in every mind. When Mr. Jamieson had finished his cursory examination, he got up and dusted the knees of his trousers.

"There is no sign of injury," he said, and I know I, for one, drew a long breath of relief. "From what Warner says and from his hiding in the closet, I should say he was scared to death. Fright and weak heart, together."

"But what could have done it?" Gertrude asked. "He was all right this evening at dinner. Warner, what did he say when you found him on the porch?"

Warner looked shaken; his honest, boyish face was colorless.

"Just what I told you, Miss Innes. He'd been reading the paper downstairs; I had put up the car, and, feeling sleepy, I came down to the lodge to go to bed. As I went upstairs Thomas put down the paper and taking his pipe went out on the porch. Then I heard an exclamation from him."

"Didn't he say anything you could understand?" I asked.

"He said something about the grave giving up its dead."

Mr. Jamieson was going through the old man's pockets, and Gertrude was composing his arms, folding them across his white shirt-bosom, always so spotless.

In the course of his investigations the detective had come to the inner pocket of the dead butler's black coat. Here he found some things that interested him. One was a small flat key, with a red cord tied to it, and the other was a bit of white paper, on which was written something in Thomas' cramped hand. Mr. Jamieson read it; then he gave it to me. It was an address in fresh ink:

LUCIEN WALLACE,
14 Elm Street, Richfield.

As the card went around, I think both the detective and I watched for any possible effect it might have, but, beyond perplexity, there seemed to be none.

"Richfield!" Gertrude exclaimed. "Why, Elm street is the main street; don't you remember, Halsey?"

"Lucien Wallace!" Halsey said. "That is the child Stewart spoke of at the inquest."

Warner, with his mechanic's instinct, had reached for the key. What he said was not a surprise.

"Yale lock," he said. "Probably a key to the east entry."

There was no reason why Thomas, an old and trusted servant, should not have had a key to that particular door, although the servants' entry was in the west wing. But I had not known of this key, and it opened up a new field of conjecture. Just now, however, there were many things to be attended to, and, leaving Warner with the body we all went back to the house. Mr. Jamieson walked with me, while Halsey and Gertrude followed.

"I suppose I shall have to notify the Armstrongs," I said. "They will know if Thomas had any people and how to reach them. Of course, I expect to defray the expenses of the funeral, but his relatives must be found. What do you think frightened him, Mr. Jamieson?"

"It is hard to say," he replied slowly, "but I think we may be certain it was fright, and that he was hiding from something. I am sorry in more than one way; I have always believed that Thomas knew something, or suspected something, that he would not tell. Do you know how much money there was in that worn-out wallet of his? Nearly $100! Almost two months' wages—and yet those darkies seldom have a penny. Well—what Thomas knew will be buried with him."

With the death of Thomas, I felt that a climax had come in affairs at Sunnyside. The night that followed was quiet enough. Halsey watched at the foot of the staircase, and a complicated system of bolts on the other doors seemed to be effectual.

Once in the night I wakened and thought I heard the tapping again. But all was quiet, and I had reached the stage where I refused to be disturbed for minor occurrences.

The Armstrongs were notified of Thomas' death, and I had my first interview with Dr. Walker as a result. He came up early the next morning, just as we finished breakfast, in a professional looking car with a black hood.

"I must make a double excuse for this early visit, Miss Innes," he said as he sat down. The chair was lower than he expected, and his dignity required collecting before he went on. "My professional duties are urgent and long neglected, and"—a fall to the every-day manner—"something must be done about that body."

"Yes," I said, sitting on the edge of my chair. "I merely wished the address of Thomas' people. You might have telephoned, if you were busy."

He smiled.

"I wished to see you about something else," he said. "As for Thomas, it is Mrs. Armstrong's wish that you allow her to attend to the expense. About his relatives, I have already notified his brother, in the village. It was heart disease, I think. Thomas always had a bad heart."

"Heart disease and fright," I said, still on the edge of my chair. But the doctor had no intention of leaving.

"I understand you have a ghost up here, and that you have the house filled with detectives to exorcise it," he said.

For some reason I felt I was being "pumped," as Halsey says. "You have been misinformed," I replied.

"What, no ghost, no detectives!" he said, still with his smile. "What a disappointment to the village!"

I resented his attempt at playfulness. It had been anything but a joke to us.

"Dr. Walker," I said tartly, "I fail to see any humor in the situation. Since I came here, one man has been shot, and another one has died from shock. There have been intruders in the house, and strange noises. If that is funny, there is something wrong with my sense of humor."

"You miss the point," he said, still good naturedly. "The thing that is funny to me is that you insist on remaining here, under the circumstances. I should think nothing would keep you."

"You are mistaken. Everything that occurs only confirms my resolution to stay until the mystery is cleared."

"I have a message for you, Miss Innes," he said, rising at last. "Mrs. Armstrong asked me to thank you for your kindness to Louise, whose whim, occurring at the time it did, put her to great inconvenience. Also—and this is a delicate matter—she asked me to appeal to your natural sympathy for her, at this time, and to ask you if you will not reconsider your decision about the house. Sunnyside is her home; she loves it dearly, and just now she wishes to retire here for quiet and peace."

"She must have had a change of heart," I said, ungraciously enough. "Louise told me her mother despised the place. Besides, this is no place for quiet and peace just now. Anyhow, doctor, while I don't care to force an issue, I shall certainly remain here, for a time at least."

"For how long?" he asked.

"My lease is for six months. I shall stay until some explanation is found for certain things. My own family is implicated now, and I shall do everything to clear the mystery of Arnold Armtsrong's murder."

The doctor stood looking down, slapping his gloves thoughtfully against the palm of a well-looked-after hand.

"You say there have been intruders in the house?" he asked. "You are sure of that, Miss Innes?"

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

One Thing at a Time.

"Why do you always eat a square meal before dining out?"

"So that I can give my entire attention to the management of the various knives and forks."

ENGAGEMENT NOW OUT.

Ethel—Weren't you surprised when you heard about my horse running away with me?

Ernest—Not very. I'd do the same thing myself if I got the chance.

Good Advice, but——

A traveler entered a railway carriage at a wayside station. The sole occupants of the compartment consisted of an old lady and her son, about twelve years old. Nothing of note occurred until the train steamed into the station at which tickets were collected. The woman, not having a ticket for the boy, requested him to "corrie doon."

The traveler intervened and suggested putting him under the seat.

"Man," said the excited woman, "it's as shair as daith; but there's twa under the sait a'ready!"

Fair Play.

One of the hardest things to wash is a mechanic's shirt. It accumulates dust and grime and grease, naturally, and the effort to get that dust and grime and grease out with ordinary soap is something tremendous. "Easy Task Soap," however, does half the work for you and makes the other half easier. Its duty is to get after the dirt and take it out. You don't have to rub and scrub over the tub. Tell your grocer you want it. Five cents a cake—same price as poo soaps.

Points to Good Future.

Seven poor children, four girls and three boys, all about ten years old, went to a nearby seashore resort, in charge of two women, for a day's outing. The funds for the picnic were provided by two boys who sell papers and who live in one of the two houses from which the excursion party was recruited. One of the women in charge of the children said that the boys had arranged the outing "of their own accord, and the remarkable thing is this: They are not good boys by any means and one of them is probably the naughtiest boy in the neighborhood. But we think that when boys do little things like this they will come out all right."—New York Tribune.

Woman-Like.

"I hate him! I think he is the meanest man I ever met."

"Gracious, Jeanette! What is the trouble?"

"Why, he told me he loved me devotedly and I told him it would be impossibly for me to love him in return. The poor fellow looked so downhearted I told him to try and forget me."

"Well?"

"Boo-hoo! He—he did."

Generosity.

The Backer—Go it, Billy, you ain't half licked yet.

The Fighter—Well, you come and 'ave the other 'arf. I ain't greedy!—Tit-Bits.

The Only Way.

"How can I win you for my very own?"

"You fellows might get up a raffle," answered the summer girl. "I'm engaged to seven of you."

A FOOD DRINK.
Which Brings Daily Enjoyment.

A lady doctor writes:

"Though busy hourly with my own affairs, I will not deny myself the pleasure of taking a few minutes to tell of my enjoyment daily obtained from my morning cup of Postum. It is a food beverage, not a poison like coffee.

"I began to use Postum eight years ago, not because I wanted to, but because coffee, which I dearly loved, made my nights long weary periods to be dreaded and unfitting me for business during the day.

"On the advice of a friend, I first tried Postum, making it carefully as directed on the package. As I had always used 'cream and no sugar,' I mixed my Postum so. It looked good, was clear and fragrant, and it was a pleasure to see the cream color it as my Kentucky friend always wanted her coffee to look—'like a new saddle.'

"Then I tasted it critically, for I had tried many 'substitutes' for coffee. I was pleased, yes, satisfied, with my Postum in taste and effect, and am yet, being a constant user of it all these years.

"I continually assure my friends and acquaintances that they will like it in place of coffee, and receive benefit from its use. I have gained weight, can sleep sound and am not nervous."

"There's a Reason."

THE NO PLAYS OF JAPAN

A SCENE FROM "ATAKA" ONE OF THE "NO" PLAYS

THE "No," or mask play, is not the creation of one time or one age; it has an old history, since it was born like a mystery from the national impulse and love of literature and legends from our almost blind belief in Buddhism and ghosts, which was encouraged first in the feudal age by the Ashikaga lords from the fourteenth century down to the close of the sixteenth century. It was in those days that we formed the national epics or poems—that is to say, the "No" plays; it was the first time and last in the history of Japanese literature to have the various traditions and legends, the certain Buddhistic faith and imagination (those things hopelessly neglected by the aristocratic literature of the Kyoto court in the former age), dressed in pure literature. I said it was the last, because the novels and dramas that were sent out later on in the Tokugawa age were not, in a large measure, new attempts from those of the Ashikaga ages, but only an emphasis. Yoshimitsu, the third lord of the Ashikaga government, the propagandist of the tea ceremonies and refined arts, may be said to have been the first encourager of the "No;" and at the time Yoshimasa, the eighth lord, it had been roughly completed as we have it today. In due time, Ashikaga's power declined, and the most wonderful war god arose on the horizon in the person of Hideyoshi, the Napoleon of Japan, who, on the other hand, was no small patron of art and literature. The "No" was not left in oblivion in his time, but many new pieces were added to the already great number of the repertory, and alterations were made in those already in practise. When the times came down to the Tokugawa feudal era of the seventeenth century, the period of peace and prosperity, it had become the most important factor of the nation's life. To recite lines from the "No," and to act on the stage if possible, was regarded to be one of a gentleman's accomplishments; the "No" play in contrast to the common theater held the most dignified, noble place of entertainment. And so it is today. It was thought even sacred and it began to assume the most necessary role at a wedding ceremony. With the singing of a passage from "Takasago" your wedlock will be sealed.

"Takasago," the happy play celebrating constancy, endurance, health and longevity, is represented by an old man and an old woman busy in the work of raking up pine needles under the pine trees. The passage says:

"True it is that these pine trees shed not all their leaves, their verdure remains fresh for ages long; even among evergreen trees—the emblems of unchangeableness—exalted is their fame to the end of time—the fame of the two pine trees that have grown old together." What are these two pine trees? Who are the old man and woman? The ghosts of the trees are nothing but the old man and woman singing the age of golden and happy life. Oh, pine trees of the color of eternity and life, you are the symbol of peace and joy. Among some 300 repertories now in existence there is no other like "The Robe of Feathers" that will gracefully carry the delicate statuesque beauty of composition and sentiment. It is the play of a fairy whose feather robe was stolen by a fisherman on Mio's pine-clad shore, while she was bathing, and upon her promise to dance was given back finally. Not to go to extreme even in sadness is taught in Japan to be the height of cultured manners; here we have every Oriental beauty and lamentation in this fairy who could not fly back to the sky, and sang:

Vainly my glance doth seek the heavenly plain,
Where rising vapours all the air enshroud,
And veil the well-known paths from cloud to cloud.

And she promised that she would dance the dance that makes the Palace of the moon turn round, and would leave her dance behind us a token to mortal men, if her robe should be restored her. However, the fisherman doubted that she might hurry home to heaven without dancing at all; then the fairy said:

"Fie on thee! The pledge of mortals may be doubted, but in heavenly beings there is no falsehood."

As I said, the "No" is the creation of the age when by the virtue of sutra, or Buddha's holy name, any straying ghosts or spirits in Hades were believed to enter Nirvana. There is no wonder that most of the plays have to deal with those ghosts and Buddhism. Here we have one play, called "Morning Glory;" the flower cannot enter Nirvana on account of her short life of only one morning and of her jealousies that burn on seeing the other flowers who enjoy a longer life. However, her ghost will disappear with satisfaction when the monk gives her a sermon that eternity is nothing but a moment, and to live in a moment is to live in the ages. The "No's" ghostliness and poetical imagination reach the climax in the play of "Yamauba," or the Mountain-woman, whose author is said to be Ikkyu, the famous priest. What does it represent? It is the play of a dancer called Yamauba, who strayed into a mountain, and actually saw the mountain-woman's mountain wandering. Our life is a sort of mountain where we wander; the mountain-woman is a symbol of transmigration of soul and endlessness. And the dancer, Yamauba, is the incarnation of the ghost of the mountain-woman, who dances and wanders with her own real soul in the mountain. Such a symbolic play, I think, could be very well adapted to the western stage. Who wrote those "No" plays, you ask? The names of the authors are forgotten ages ago, because they were written in the time when we never asked who wrote them if the plays themselves were good.

THE GENTLE SHEEP AS A RAPID-FIRE MONEYMAKER.

An enormous number of sheep are coming into the Union Stock Yards, Chicago, which are being sent there by Western grazers on account of the scarcity of feed in that section of the country, and which must be sold at buyers' prices.

The states of Michigan, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, are well provided with good feed and an opportunity of this kind, if offered by one of the great dry goods houses or department stores of Chicago, would deplete three-quarters of the homes of that city of its womenkind inside of half an hour after the notice appeared. All they would want would be time enough to throw a few clothes over them; some wouldn't even stop to put "rats" in their hair, thousands would forget the "powder," none would stop to "paint," but every "father's daughter" of them would make a "B" line to hubbies' pants, and extract therefrom without leave, license or consent, all that therein was to be found in the shape of cash, and then tumble over each other to be first on the spot.

Lots of these women would buy much more than they required, and would quietly hold over their purchases until the close of the sale, and then let loose their surplus stock upon their less wide awake friends, and reap thereby a harvest of "sheckels" which we may take for granted would be at once returned to the trouser pockets of their husbands while those gentlemen still slept. That is the woman of it.

Let us take a lesson from her thrifty and honest example. Extracting from the pockets of a slumbering spouse, under such circumstances is not robbery, it is only borrowing, and more than that, it is borrowing on account of that most beautiful of all female characteristics — thoughtful consideration—She did not wish to disturb the peaceful rest of her softly sleeping consort.

Sheep feeding at this particular time, and after the season of Western drought just experienced, will be most profitable to those who are fortunate enough to have the feed, and such as have, can in the course of sixty days turn over their money in such a satisfactory way as will add very largely to their bank accounts.

There is nothing in sight at the present moment, that offers a better and safer investment than the purchase of these sheep, in numbers that each buyer can accommodate, and nothing that offers so speedy and so certain a return.

No Help Needed.

A little miss of five years who had been allowed to stay up for an evening party, was told about 8:30 to go to bed. Very, very slowly she moved toward the stair. An aunt, seeing her reluctant, asked:

"Helen, can I do anything to help you?"

"No," replied Helen, "I will get there altogether too soon as it is."

Something About Chinaware.

Every woman is proud of her china, and wants to keep it looking new and perfect. So often she will use the wrong kind of soap on it and injure it in appearance—make it look worn and cheap. "Easy Task Soap"—the hard, white, pure laundry soap—is the only kind to use on china. Not only does it clean china quickly and safely, but its antiseptic qualities sterilize the china. In these days of germ-caused diseases this is an important point.

HIS RUBBERS HAD VANISHED

Consequently Man From the Country Had Little Use for City Methods.

The benches in the waiting rooms at the Union depot in Kansas City are used for other purposes than to rest on by travelers, the Kansas City Star enlightens us. At every midnight the maids clean out the rooms. They do not forget to poke under the benches for stray bundles left by trusting travelers.

Sometimes, after intervals, the travelers return to claim their property. Some time ago a red cap at the depot saw a man in a linen duster, a felt hat and the manner of one who had spent his life in a secluded part of the Ozarks get down on his knees and peer carefully under several of the benches.

"Lost anything, mister?" the red cap queried.

"Wall, no, sonny, not 'zactly. I left a pair of rubbers here last January when I was on the way tew Emporey. Hain't seen nuthin' of 'em, have you?"

The red cap explained that he hadn't, and, moreover, that the room had been cleaned out several dozen times since last January.

"Well, I swan," replied the traveler, blinking and stroking his beard. "The city methods do beat me."

Why He Wouldn't Hurry.

They were riding to church and were late. Several of the party were worried and one remarked: "The audience will be waiting." "Well," observed the old pastor (who was to preach that forenoon), "don't let's fret over it if we are a little late. It reminds me of the man who was being taken to execution. His guards were greatly exercised over the fact that they could not possibly get there on time. 'Never mind,' said the poor fellow, philosophically. 'Don't fuss over it. The people can wait. There'll be nothing doing till I get there.'"—Christian Herald.

Flirting With Fashion.

That innate tendency on the part of the fair consumer to flirt with fashion, playing fast and loose with various commodities, is responsible for the uncertainties that have prevailed during the month. There was such a lack of confidence as to the ultimate acceptance of the various lines prepared by distributers and consumers that buying was somewhat minimized. Prosperity or adversity has nothing to do with the millinery business. Fashion alone makes or breaks.—Millinery Trade Review.

DOCTOR ADVISED OPERATION

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Galena, Kans.—"A year ago last March I fell, and a few days after there was soreness in my right side. In a short time a bunch came and it bothered me so much at night I could not sleep. It kept growing larger and by fall it was as large as a hen's egg. I could not go to bed without a hot water bottle applied to that side. I had one of the best doctors in Kansas and he told my husband that I would have to be operated on as it was something like a tumor caused by a rupture. I wrote to you for advice and you told me not to get discouraged but to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did take it and soon the lump in my side broke and passed away."—Mrs. R. R. HUEY, 713 Mineral Ave., Galena, Kans.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has proved to be the most successful remedy for curing the worst forms of female ills, including displacements, inflammation, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, and nervous prostration. It costs but a trifle to try it, and the result has been worth millions to many suffering women.

If you want special advice write for it to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass. It is free and always helpful.

PIMPLES

"I tried all kinds of blood remedies which failed to do me any good, but I have found the right thing at last. My face was full of pimples and black-heads. After taking Cascarets they all left. I am continuing the use of them and recommending them to my friends. I feel fine when I rise in the morning. Hope to have a chance to recommend Cascarets." Fred C. Witten, 76 Elm St., Newark, N. J.

PHILIPPINE WITCHCRAFT

That a firm belief in witchcraft persists in some parts of Pampanga province is the purport of a communication received in Manila from an investigator, who has investigated the claims of Filipinos that they were being afflicted with various bodily ills by persons who are called Magcalums, according to the Manila Times. While the educated inhabitants scoff at the belief, it was found to be widespread throughout the towns as well as in the agricultural sections far from large centers of population. Extracts from the communication follows: "The belief is an old one, probably coexistent with the tribes. It is not confined to one or two towns, but exists to a greater or less degree in all, though the idea probably is having a greater hold upon the people Lubao, Macabebe and Pasantol than any of the other municipalities.

"The belief is that a person who has this power can create illness in another, provided the other is a believer in Magcalums. A careful and extended search has failed to produce a single Pampangan who impressed investigator as being entirely free from the idea that people might have this power. Many laugh at the mention of such a power and in a general way say that they do not consider it possible, yet references to specific cases will usually elicit the fact that they can ascribe no other cause to certain effects.

"It would seem that the tender spot of these near divinities is the neck of the intended victim, the Magcalums causing an enlargement of that part of the body. Sometimes the infliction is related to a specific event. For instance, in Arayat a woman once told a prospective purchaser that she had no eggs, which the customer found out to be false. Later it was said that a chicken grew inside the stomach of the woman. Another account is of a Magcalum who was bound and an attempt made to burn holes in her face. The instruments made no impression upon her, but the marks of burns appeared upon the face of the woman who had instigated the maltreatment."

The Trust Evil.

Blox—Snipes claims to be a trust victim.

Knox—Guess that's right. A trust closed the factory in which his wife had a job.

Not Guilty.

The Barber—Your hair is getting thin, sir. Have you ever tried my special hair tonic?

The Victim—No, indeed. That wasn't what caused it.

All Puffed Up.

"He seems to feel his importance immensely."

Yes; he has been paged here in the hotel three times this forenoon."

With a Fine Bloom On.

Abe—Went to one of them there roof gardens when I was in Noo York.

Hiram—What do they raise on 'em, Abe?

Abe—Peaches, by gosh.

Not Always True.

"'A stitch in time saves nine,'" repeated the student of old sayings.

"It doesn't always save nine," objected the man with a hole in his pocket, "I lost only $8.50."

Merely a Name.

"And are you really going to retire from the stage?" we asked.

"Oh, no," replied the great actress "This is merely a farewell tour."

BLUE BELL.

Local news on every page.

Glorious Record! 1860--Lincoln to Taft--1910.

LINCOLN I dont't know much about the tariff, but I know this much: When we buy manufactured goods abroad we get the goods and the foreigner gets the money. When we buy the maunfactured goods at home we get both the goods and the money.

The American system of locating manufacturing next to the plow and the pasture has produced a result noticeable by the intelligent portion of all commercial nations. GRANT

HARRISON The more work there is to do in this country the higher the wages that will be paid for doing it. That policy which secures the largest amount of work to be done at home is the policy which will secure to our laboring men steady employment at the best wages.

The Republican Party stands for honest money and the chance to earn it by honest toil. Protection has vindicated itself. It cannot be helped by eulogy or hurt by defamation; it has worked its own demonstration and it presents in the sight of the world its matchless trophies. M'KINLEY

ROOSEVELT This country has and this country needs better paid, better educated, better fed and better clothed workingmen, of a higher type than are to be found in any foreign country. It has and it needs a higher, more vigorous and more prosperous type of tillers of the soil than is possessed by any other country.

The present business system of the country rests on the protective tariff and any attempt to change it to a Free Trade basis will certainly lead to disaster. It is important that all Republicans who believe in the party principles as declared in the national platform of 1906 should give the candidates loyal and effective support. If this is done there will be no doubt of a Republican majority. The only alternative is a Democratic victory TAFT
